SEASONAL SAFEGUARDS from SANTA

Ho Ho Ho! 'Tis the season to be jolly and have fun, but Rudolph was most anxious that I sent you these few reminders to help your pets stay safe this Christmas

Chocolate Scrummy stuff, and loads of it lying around over Christmas...but please remember not for our pets. It contains 'theobromine', which is poisonous to dogs & cats, and can be fatal. So don't give in to those pleading eyes!

Baubles Bangles & Beads

to decorate your tree, not the inside of your pet's tummy!

Twinkly Lights

usually require extra plugs and cables, so beware of pets chewing at wires etc., or Rover and Tiddles might just end up being part of the display!

Treats

Too many and like us humans, over indulgence can cause stomach upsets and unhealthy weight gain.

Turkey

The carcass bones are a definite big NO! These could become lodged in their throat, intestine or stomach to cause big problems.

Pills lotions & potions

You never know what visiting guests will leave around the house, so ensure all human medication is kept well out of reach from your pets, as some can prove fatal to animals.

Exercise

Keep up the daily dog walk, it's part of your pets' important routine healthcare.

Small pets

living outside need plenty of warm bedding, and check that drinking water is not frozen.

Antifreeze

Great for our cars, but potentially fatal for animals if swallowed. Clear spillages, and call us immediately if you think your pet has ingested this liquid.

Fireworks

Spare a thought for the animal world when the whizzes and bangs hit the air! Help and advice for nervous pets is available at our surgery.
